Context of the research activity
Motivation and objectives of the research in this field	The research field Telecommunications is focused on the design and implementation of devices, systems, networks (Internet, wireless networks, optical networks), services, and applications for the transmission and the processing of any type of signals (including audio, video, RADAR) and multimedia information. Particular attention is given to advanced networks and transmission systems for mobile and fixed users and to remote sensing applications aiming at earth observation and sub-soil exploration. The strong connection with leading companies (within and outside the telecommunication market) makes the mix between theory and application one of the strengths of the Telecommunications research field at Politecnico di Milano.  http://www.deib.polimi.it/eng/telecommunications
Methods and techniques that will be developed and used to carry out the research	The research is carried out with the support of a supervisor and of his research group. Seminars and courses are offered to encourage an interdisciplinary approach to the research. Computer simulation and/or laboratory activities are always required to finalize the research.
Educational objectives	The doctoral program offers advanced training in the hot topics explored by the scientific community and industry.
